

The next step being to pull `privatemsg` into the panel. Not really sure how to do that as it doesn't present as a block. Any advice on that would be appreciated.

panel. Not
o that as it
block. Any
d be

I think you will get where this is going when you look at the plug-ins.

What I'm attempting is to create a full Drupal install that I can apply without starting from zip every time. So I'm reviewing all issues about the development environment.

The Themer info is just placed with CSS but it needs to go into the template to work correctly.