

Thank you!

Thank you for your interest in contributing to the Drupal project! Contributors are the project's most valuable asset; without people contributing to the project, there wouldn't be a Drupal at all!

There are several areas in which you can provide assistance:

User support

Even the most gifted Drupal developers were "newbies" once, and chances are, someone's helped you at some point along the way. Give back by sharing what you know with users who need support. It's a nice thing to do and, who knows? You might learn something, too!

Get more information on how to help with user support.

Translations

Drupal supports several translations, from Afrikaans to Turkish. If you know another language, offer your skills to help maintain Drupal core and contributed module translations.

Get more information on how to help with translations.

Documentation

Whether you're interested in providing additional API documentation, writing step-by-step tutorials for the handbook, or producing screencasts to show people how Drupal works, you can help improve Drupal's documentation.

Get more information on how to help with documentation.