How PayPal Works

Step 1: Consumer orders using PayPal

Step 2: Consumer is redirected to PayPal payment page and logs in to his account and confirms billing details

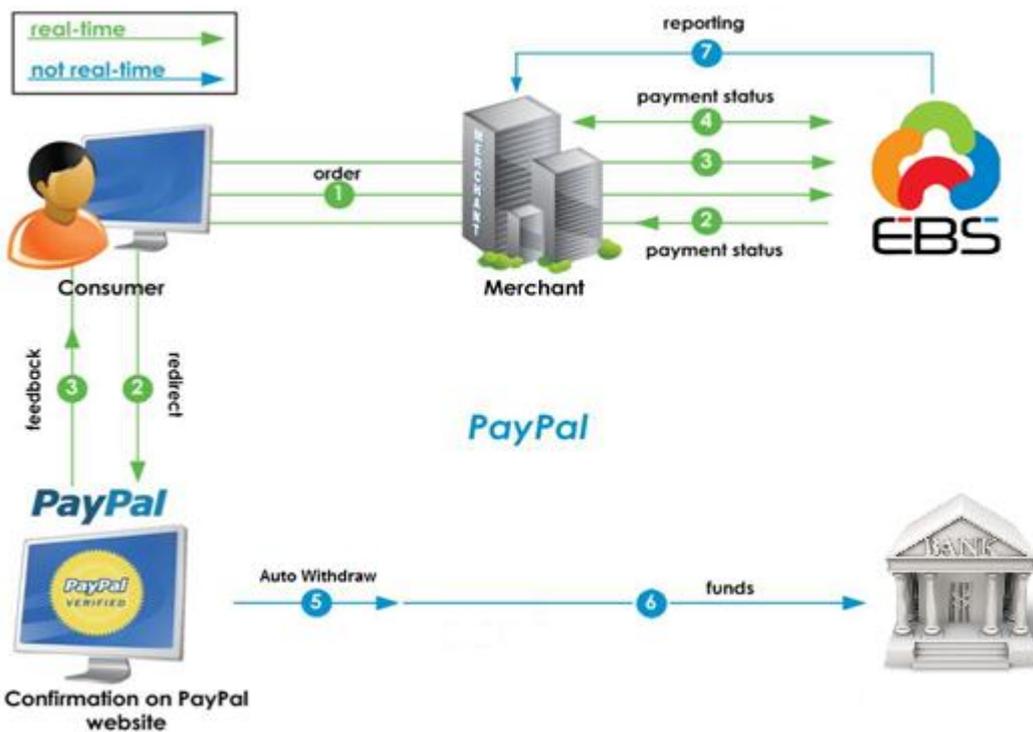

Step 3: Payment is approved and status sent to EBS in real-time

Step 4: EBS sends payment status to Merchant in real-time

Step 5: The funds will be auto withdrawn automatically daily transferring your money from your PayPal account into your bank account in India

Step 6: To account for processing timeframes, please allow for 5-7 business days after your money is auto withdrawn from your PayPal account for the money to show up in your bank account in India.

Step 7: PayPal transactions are shown on the EBS consolidated reporting

Funding and Withdrawing from Paypal

Merchants can open a PayPal account by registering online from EBS Backend console.

In order to comply with the RBI Guidelines, all PayPal users in India must:

- Add a Permanent Account Number (PAN) and Purpose Code.
By adding this information, you will continue to receive export-related payments into your PayPal account and your account will not be limited from receiving future payments.
- Add a bank account in India
This will help us to auto withdraw your PayPal balance out of your PayPal account and transfer your balance to your bank account in India. Note: if you don't add a bank account in India to your PayPal account then your PayPal account will also be limited from receiving export-related payments.

Now you will be able to receive export-related payments of up to USD 3000 per transaction into your PayPal account.

FIRC for the foreign transactions will not be provided by EBS.

EBS will not be liable for any loss occurred through PayPal Account Transactions

USD is the Primary/Default Currency for the Indian PayPal Account. Merchants can accept multiple currencies other than USD, but they have to open up Currencies Balances in the PayPal Account for those currencies. If Currency balances are not configured for a particular (for Ex: Euro), then that transaction will be in the “UnClaimed” status until the Merchants manually accept the Transaction from his PayPal Account.

In-order to avoid these situations, merchant can open Currency Balances for the Currencies which Merchant is accepting.

Here is the instructions to open Multiple Currency Balances in the PayPal Account :

1. Please click on the below link & Login to your PayPal Account:

https://www.paypal.com/au/cgi-bin/customerprofileweb?cmd=_profile-currencies

2. Select the desired “Currency” from the drop down menu & click on “Add Currency”.
