

handy reference for understanding privacy rights and regulations. Think of it as the user-friendly interface to the legal language of our Privacy Policy.

+

In plain language, regulations such as GDPR define the following roles, rights, and responsibilities:

*Data Subject - this is you, the end user.

+

*Data Controller - this is us, the Drupal Association as the owners and operators of Drupal.org and its sub-sites.

*Data Processor - any other organization that processes personal data on behalf of the Data Controller.

Rights of the Data Subject

+

*Right to be Informed - A data subject has the right to know whether personal information is being processed; where; and for what purpose.

+

This information is outlined in the section below titled "Information We Collect About You" and "How we Use Your Information".

*Right to Access - A data subject has a right to access the information about them that is stored by the Data Controller.

+

This information is outlined in the section below titled "Information We Collect About You" and "How we Use

Your Information" .

- + ****
- + Right to Rectification - A data subject has the right to correct any errors in the data about them. This can be done by editing your user account, or contacting the Drupal Association directly.
 **
- + Right to Restrict Processing - A data subject has the right to request that data not be processed, and yet also not be deleted by the Data Controller.
 **
- + Right to Object - A data subject has the right to opt out of marketing, processing based on legitimate interest, or processing for research or statistical purposes.
- + Right to be Forgotten - Also known as the right to revoke consent, the right to be forgotten states that a data subject has the right to request erasure of data, the cessation of processing by the controller, and halting processing of the data by third party processors.
- + The conditions for this, as outlined in article 17, include the data no longer being relevant to original purposes for processing, or a data subjects withdrawing consent.
- + It should also be noted that this right requires controllers to compare the subjects' rights to "the public interest in the availability of the data" when considering such requests.
- + This information is outlined in the sections below titled "Accessing and Correcting Your Information" .
